Abstract

Changes in tourism trends make tourists need to be more interactive and try to overcome the experience of not just being tourists who are served by actors in the tourism industry. The development of creative tourism is like this, and besides being able to meet the needs of tourists, the development of creative tourism can also create jobs and improve people's welfare. The city of Bandung is a city owned by the Ministry of Tourism and Creative Economy to be included in the UNESCO World Network of creative cities. However, the city of Bandung also has a limited typology of natural tourism. This is what makes the Bandung City government take advantage of the creative spaces that exist around the community, namely Kampung-Kota as an alternative for developing tourism potential. The Bandung City Government has developed 30 creative tourism villages in 30 Bandung City Districts. And Dago Pojok Creative Tourism Village is the first creative tourism village in Bandung City and the ideas from the Dago Pojok Village community become an example for other Creative Tourism Villages in Bandung City.
The purpose of this study was to identify and determine the actual conditions of creative tourism in the Dago Pojok Creative Tourism Village as a creative tourist attraction and its impact on the socio-Economic conditions of the community. The method used is descriptive with a qualitative approach with analysis using coding tools. The development of creative tourism in the Dago Pojok Creative Tourism Village has had a positive impact on the socio-economic life of the community. Judging from the relationship between the community, education, increased community income, and the opening of new job opportunities for the community. Even so, the overall socio-economic impact for the community has not been sustainable. Because creative tourism activities have not been able to become the main livelihood and uncertain community income which depends on the number of tourist visits to Dago Pojok Creative Village.

A. INTRODUCTION

Tourism development has experienced some shifts. Shifting preferences and Interest in travel occur in mass form tourism towards an individual form of tourism, namely the tendency to move away from standard mass-scale tourism products towards unique, diverse, and tourism products quality (Chunfeng Li, 2020). Trend changes Tourism is also caused by tourists who need to be more interactive and trying to fulfill the experience not only just being a tourist served by actors in the tourism industry. One of the tourism developments that is being intensively carried out by the government is tourism development-based creative. Creative tourism development is hope for the economy in the global era. By combining ideas, art, and technology, creativity-based economic development can create jobs and improve community welfare. This statement is also supported by (Damanik, 2013) who states that creativity takes the form of the development of traditional arts has now become a major force in the turnaround world economy, especially in the tourism sector through creative tourism development. Creative tourism is a new form of tourism that has the potential to change the existing tourism development model and make a new contribution to creating experiences for tourists (Restu et al, 2022)
According to (UNESCO, 2006) tourism creativity is defined as a sub-segment of cultural tourism, with a focus on participation interactive. Along with other definitions, this creative tourism emerged because of dissatisfaction with the “seeing” nature of mass cultural tourism in recent years. Interactive learning according to (Damayanti & Latifah, 2022) means that creative tourism must become a place-based approach to tourism culture through creative interpretation of place. City Bandung is a city proposed by the Ministry of Tourism and Creative Economy to enter the creative city network in the world belonging to UNESCO. Recognition from the organization this international level can be seen with the election of Bandung City as a creative city pilot project in Asia when the meeting was held with international economy-based cities creative in Yokohama City, Japan. Government the city of Bandung is also encouraging its creative village development Bandung is nicknamed a creative city. Apart from that, there is also the construction of a creative village that intends to encourage its creation A village full of arts and cultural activities encourages the economy of local communities.

Based on the City’s Strategic Plan Bandung in 2018-2023 states that the Bandung City Government wants to make tourism activities in the city of Bandung can improve the local economy of Bandung City which has a focus on the creative economy by prioritizing progress in an economy based on increasing added value resulting from creativity, culture, art, and the imagination of city residents Bandung. This is also supported by Bandung City RTRW which states that The city of Bandung acts as one of the city’s services with one of the mainstay sectors being the tourism sector with a development direction in the field of arts and culture and tourism development creative.

Dago Pojok Creative Tourism Village is a city village in the city of Bandung and is located at RW 03 Kelurahan Dago, Coblong District, Bandung City. Dago Pojok Creative Tourism Village has concepts in the form of tourism, education, and industry creativity to raise potential village areas as activity centers for economy and culture. (Wisesa et al., 2018) too states that in the Creative Tourism Area, Dago Pojok offers tourism concept community-based with tourism potential offered consists of fashion, handicrafts, murals, culinary delights, traditional music, and traditional dance.

According to as the initiator Dago Pojok Creative Tourism Village, formerly, Dago Pojok Creative Tourism Village before developed into a creative village.

1. Creative Tourism

Creative tourism is an alternative form of tourism that provides tourists with opportunities to develop their talents and potential through active participation in drawing experiences according to the characteristics of the destination, making cultural tourism more interactive and improving the quality of contact between tourists with local communities. (Richard & Wilson, 2007). (Richard & Wilson, 2007) reveals four key aspects creative tourism development, namely:

a. Developing Creative Potential

Tourists need to be provided with the tools to be creative develop your inner potential and bring home something more than just souvenirs. Social and economic issues in the area include a high crime rate and level of high unemployment in society due to there is issue of community productivity low. Then the village was developed this creative tourism is expected to become a forum for local communities should be given a platform so that you can be more productive in opening a business and indirectly it will also increase the local community economy. Besides perceived economic benefits, with development of Dago Pojok Village can become a creative tourist village minimize these social problems or issues and make society more united.

For this reason, impact analysis is necessary to develop creative tourism, to see how the tourism sector, in particular, creative tourism plays a role in this improve the economy and opening up opportunities job opportunities, and see how socio-economic conditions of local communities after the existence of creative tourism development, remembering Dago Pojok Creative Tourism Village is the first creative village in Bandung. So if tourism development creativity has an impact on social conditions local community economy, then it won’t rule out the possibility that this could happen in the other villages Creative Tourism is spread across 29 other sub-districts in Bandung City.

b. Creating active engagement tourists are actively involved in activities and culture and there is cultural exchange with the public.

c. Provide a distinctive experience linking creativity in teaching local culture and identity.

d. Creating Creations Together Creative tourism requires bringing togetherness between tourists and residents local to create creations together.

2. City Village

The term "Kampung" is taken from the language Malay and is a term used to describe the system of rural settlements (Kustiawan and Efrizal, 2019). Additionally, the term "Kampung" is often used to depict a dichotomy (division between mutual groups conflict) between city and village. While the term "City" is synonymous with modernization or progress, temporary "Kampung" is synonymous with underdevelopment. In the development process, the term "Kampung" is used to describe the housing phenomenon in independently built urban areas by immigrants. This housing is called "Kampung-Kota" or housing that is like a village in rural, but in the city (Kustiawan and Efrizal, 2019). This matter supported by Shirleyana's statement (2018) in Ghifari (2020) according to him "Kampung" is the result of the efforts community in building his residence. Villages are one form of settlement in urban areas with unique characteristics Indonesia characteristics or identical forms residents who still carry the traits and the behavior of rural life intertwined in family ties tight; physical condition of the building and bad environment, irregularity or non-uniformity caused by the form of housing the irregular; building density and high population; limited facilities basic services such as clean water channels wastewater and rainwater, discharge rubbish and others so some Large villages became enclaves unhealthy townsfolk; No productive as well as status and legality the ownership of the land is unclear; or narrow aisle width (Heryati, 2008; Kristianti, 2013; Setiawan, 2010 in Kustiawan and Efrizal, 2019).

3. Sustainable Development

Sustainable development is defined as development that must meet current needs without sacrificing the rights and needs of future generations. Sustainable development contains the meaning of quality assurance of human life and not beyond the ecosystem's ability to support it. Therefore, the meaning of sustainable development is development to fulfill needs at the moment without reducing the capabilities of that generation (Sudarmadji, 2008). This matter is also supported by (Budimanta, 2015) who states that development sustainability is a way of the activity carried out systematically and planned within an improvement framework for the well-being quality of life, and environment of humanity without reducing access and opportunities to future generations to enjoy and make use of it. Meanwhile (Salim, 2003) highlights sustainable development must directed at solving problems of poverty (economic target), employment opportunities for the community (social goals), and high quality, environmental life (goals environment). Development sustainability includes three scopes of policy: economic development, social development, and protection environment. One of the sectors that is important to keep up with development sustainability is the tourism sector, because the tourism sector is vulnerable to damage occurs, therefore in the development of the tourism sector must follow the principles of sustainability so that always balancing development between economic, social, and environmental.

4. Tourism Impact
Impact is defined as impact or influence that brings consequences both positive and negative. This too supported (Christo, 2008) which states that impact is caused by something carried out, can be positive or negative, or strong influence brings negative consequences or positive. As for understanding impact according to (Arif, 2009) impact is something that results from it there is 'Something’. The impact itself can also be severe, the consequences before and after the existence of 'Something’. Impact Negative such development is not always aware of it or not always On the surface, it’s a short problem This will discuss how to analyze the social impact of development and after that will be taken seriously in the study development impact. Tourists who are going to a destination within a certain period, using resources and the facility usually costs money for certain purposes, then leave the place to return to its original place. If tourists come to a destination this will have a big impact on the economic life of the area is good impact directly or indirectly direct. The economic impact resulting can be positive or negative. (Pitana & Putu, 2009) added that the impact of tourism on the economy categorized into 8 (eight) categories as follows:
   a. Impact of tourism development on foreign exchange receipts.
   b. Impact of tourism development on people's income.
   c. Impact of tourism development on job opportunities.
   d. Impact of tourism development on the distribution of benefits or profit.
   e. Impact of tourism development of ownership and control (economic) society.
   f. Impact of tourism development towards development in general.
